¹ All banks that have operated in Sweden during the year and are subject to supervision of the Swedish Financial Supervisory Authority (Finansinspektionen). Also included are foreign owned bank branches operating in Sweden.

² Lending to swedish and foreign public (households, companies, local governments etc.).

³ The increase in "lending to the public" during 2007 is partly due to that SEB Bolån (mortgage institution) and SEB Finans (financing institution) having merged into the mother bank SEB during 2007. The increase during 2017 is mainly explained by Nordea changing its subsidiary banks in Denmark, Finland and Norway into branches to Nordea Bank AB. The decrease in 2018 is mainly explained by Nordea moving its headquarter to Finland and Svenska Handelsbanken transforming its British branch into a subsidiary.

⁴ Deposits and funding from swedish and foreign public (households, companies, local governments etc.). ¹ All banks that have operated in Sweden during the year and are under the supervision of the Swedish Financial Supervisory Authority (Finansinspektionen). Also included are foreign owned bank branches operating in Sweden.

² Deposits and funding from the public (households, companies, local governments etc.).

³ The increase in lending to "households" and "business sector" during 2007 is partly due to that SEB Bolån (mortgage institution) and SEB Finans (financing institution) having merged into the mother bank SEB during 2007.

⁴ The increase in foreign deposits and foreign lending is to a large extent due to the transformation of Nordea Bank subsidiaries in Denmark, Finland and Norway into branches. The decrease in 2018 is mainly explained by Nordea moving its headquarter to Finland and Svenska Handelsbanken transforming its British branch into a subsidiary.

⁵ Lending to the public (households, companies, local governments etc.).

³ Calculations by Swedish Bankers' Association

⁴ The main reason for the increase of the fund is a net capital gain by the Stability fund after selling its Nordea shares.

⁵ From 2015 the fund is valued to market value.

⁶ From 1st February 2016, the Swedish National Debt Office is responsible for applying the new regulatory framework for managing failing banks. In 2016 approximately 19 billion SEK was transferred from the Stability fund to the Resolution reserve.
